Canada Renascent One of the Periods Economic Miracles

"Across our northern border there is taking place one of the economic miracles of the age. Within eighteen months an English dependency, never able to stand alone before, has aroused itself from profound depression, endowed its people with prosperity, established an export credit of its own, and actually rendered financial assistance to the British Empire. All this has been accomplished with Canadian resources."

This is the complimentary introduction to an article in the current issue of Commerce and Finance, Theo. H. Price's New York review.

The article goes on to say: "There has been no assistance from the outside world, save that which Canadian credit could command. The people of the United States have much to learn from this achievement; for it must be remembered that Canada is not, like us, a great, wealthy nation. Instead, she is shouldering a heavy share of the war's burden."

"At the end of 1913, Canada was obliged to settle her foreign debt balance with $400,000,000 of securities. The aftermath of that year of extravagance brought about a sharp decrease in imports during 1914. Still $130,000,000 in securities had to be sent to Europe to square the Dominion's accounts. Between July and December, 1915, however, the value of exports exceeded that of imports by $45,041,404. For the first time in her history Canada is standing alone. If the export excess continues throughout the year, it will go a long way toward settling the $140,000,000 or $150,000,000 of interest payments which fall due annually on Canadian securities held abroad."

"This outward sign of nascent commercial independence was brought about by strict economy and diligence. A sharp trade contraction—much more severe than that which occurred in the United States—followed immediately upon the declaration of war. The banks began to husband their resources, and even after the 'war orders' commenced flowing in, speculation of all sorts was discontinued. However, the banks have given aid liberally to enterprises of a solid, constructive character. The loans the Canadian Bank of Commerce, for instance, increased $2,007,294 in 1915, the world over has dreamed."—Montreal Star, Jan. 28th.

"The execution of 'war orders' has brought to Canada some $800,000,000 of European money and stimulated the manufacturing industries immensely. To this must be added lumber crops, and all the benefits to railroads and miscellaneous industries which a good harvest always brings."

"The effect of these activities upon general trade was not apparent until October. In that month bank clearances had just recovered to the average of their 1913 level. During November and December, however, they were $100,000,000, or 12½ per cent greater than the 1913 monthly maximum."

"But it is in the matter of independent and internal financing that the Canadians take greatest pride. Early in the year $40,000,000 was borrowed in London. This was chiefly for refunding purposes, and with that transaction Canadian dependence upon the United Kingdom ceased. Since then $144,000,000 has been borrowed in the United States upon Canadian credit alone, and $100,000,000 has been raised in Canada to aid the Mother Country in prosecuting the war. This loan, and additional taxation amounting to $22,000,000, have been managed without difficulty—a feat no one in Canada would have believed possible a year ago."

"With all the credit operations that have taken place in connection with the crop movement and the financing of new industries, the note circulation of the banks is still below the figure at which it stood in 1912, and bank liabilities are covered to the extent of 47.62 per cent."

"The most impressive economic feature of this war has developed has been the unflinching of spirit with which the financial resources of a nation can be mobilized and liquidated. The warring nations themselves have performed miracles in this way; but they have obscured the limits of soundness by mortgaging the future without regard for economic considerations. Canada, while participating in the war more or less directly, has not indulged in any of the headlong finance practiced in Europe. But she has mobilized her resources. The result astounds her own people. Incidentally it suggests that the prosperity which would result from a similarly thoroughgoing mobilization in the immensely wealthy and neutral United States would surprise any such phenomenon of which the world ever has dreamed."—Montreal Star, Jan. 28th.

The New Battalion

Lieut.-Colonel Lyon has received official notice that the organization of a battalion of infantry to be commanded by himself and to be known as the "192nd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F." with headquarters at Blairmore, has been authorized.

Later communications state that letters conveying instructions respecting the organization will be forwarded immediately.

The necessary books and forms are now on the way from headquarters at Ottawa, and should reach here in about a week's time.

General Cruickshank, commanding Military District No. 13, with headquarters at Calgary, expects to visit Blairmore in the course of a few days to conclude arrangements for the housing of the battalion at the Sanatorium hotel.

Over one hundred applications for commissions in the 192nd have been received from local and outside points. The selection of officers will be made in the course of a few days.

Recruiting will commence just as soon as the books and forms arrive, which will be about the 12th inst.

An offer has been made from the Banff district to raise a full company of men to be attached to the 192nd here, and it is understood that General Cruickshank will be asked to add the Banff end of the Rocky Mountain constituency to the territory allotted the local battalion for recruiting purposes.

Judging by the enthusiasm displayed throughout The Pass it is expected that there will be a great rush at the recruiting offices, which are to be opened in every town and village in the district. Every citizen will be expected to take an active part in this campaign, so that The Pass may have the honor and distinction of holding the enlistment record of Southern Alberta. It can be done.

To Beat The Germans

A subscriber sends us the following account of an invention by a Nova Scotia man, which is calculated to put a stop to the use of poisonous gas by the Germans.

"Turo man invents gas that will beat the Germans. Halifax, N.S., Dec. 30.—A rival for the Germans' chlorine gas has been discovered by a Canadian soldier now in England, according to word brought by members of the party of returned convalescent soldiers today, says the Toronto News. The inventor of the new destructive agent is Sergeant Percy H. Lawrence, of Truro, a member of the 17th Battalion, and he has been working on the development of the substance for four or five months. It is declared. Soldiers who have returned today say that experiments were carried out by the Nova Scotian in the presence of representatives of the British War office who hold the secret formula. Asked as to whether the British authorities intended to use the new gas, several of the returned men stated that, according to their belief, the British might employ the substance in order to compel the Huns to forgo the use of their chlorine vapors."

According to the returned soldiers the gas invented by the Canadian "will be so terrible that the enemy will never want to use their gas machines again. It is a combination of chemicals from which it is impossible to escape, it is declared, because of the fact that it explodes when it comes into contact with certain materials. In a recent experiment in which a cat was used as a victim the animal was killed instantly, although only a small quantity was released. They say that Sergeant Lawrence has been working so hard in the perfection of the gaseous substance that he has become broken down, but the combustible is now ready for practical use in the field."

Sergeant Lawrence is the son of a Nova Scotia newspaper man and was formerly a member of the 7th Regiment of the Canadian Militia."

Extracts From Letters Received From Soldiers

Hounslow Barracks,
Hounslow, Heath,
London, S. W.,
December 16, 1915.

Teachers and Scholars,
Blairmore Public School:

Your very kind present received at above barracks yesterday, for which I am very grateful, and I appreciate it all the more on account of it coming from so long a distance and from my own home in Blairmore. My comrades in barracks here think it great that the teachers and the little pupils of Blairmore should be so patriotic in remembering in such a way their soldier boys in England and France. I am sure your act of kindness will inspire our boys in the trenches to grip tighter their rifles in defence of your homes and country. I have to thank you all very much, and will always remember the nice little present from my friends in the school of dear old Blairmore. With best wishes to all,

Teachers and Scholars,

Blairmore Public School:
Received your most welcome parcel with season's good wishes, for which I thank you. Words fail me to express my appreciation of same. You cannot tell how it cheers one up to know that the people at home are doing their best, and are thinking of the boys so far away. I have been in hospital almost seven months, but glad to say that I am progressing favorably. As most of you remember, we had just captured J. but I think you have heard about that before, so thanking you again for your kindness.

Yours, etc.,

Thanks very much for Christmas present you sent me. I and a lot of my friends of the 13th C.M.R. are going to Somewhere in France, probably next Sunday or Monday. We are infantry with the Ross rifle (worse luck) and Web equipments. Well, an revoir.

Teachers and Scholars,

Just a few lines to let you know that I am O.K., but I happened to have a slight accident and was sent to hospital. I thought I would let you know that I received your parcel and was very pleased with it. Accept my many thanks. I was pleased with everything, especially the chewing gum, as we can't get any here. I can't get to know much news, as I am in bed all the time.

Yours very truly,
JOSEPH HOWE.

St. Eloy, France,
January 10, 1916.

Teachers and Pupils,

Blairmore Public School:
I received the parcel you had the kindness to send me for Christmas. The soldiers of France are not all on the front. A few of them are in works to make shells, and others are in mines to work coal. I am now among the latter since a few months, for I was appointed to a mine which wanted a manager for the duration of the war. It is here I received your parcel, which has given me a great pleasure, for it reminded me of your beautiful country and the generous feelings of your people. I thank you for it very much. In France we all hope that 1916 will see the final victory for the Allies. I am sure you have also the same hope. God save the King,

With The Pam Honor Roll. Hugh Robison, of Frank, and myself, managed to get the paper. It sure looks good to see the way the "Old Crow" boys are coming forward. We are both in good trim, and expect to last out a long while yet. Hugh used to be on the Frank switch engine. You'll remember him. He is an "armourer" corporal now. Osborne-Doubt Nuptials

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. John Osborne, Nanton, on Tuesday evening, January 25th, when his eldest son, William Curran Osborne, was united in marriage to Hilda Florence Doubt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Doubt, of Blairmore, Alberta, by the Rev. Herbert W. Toombs of Nanton.

The happy couple were supported by the brother and sister of the groom—John Raymond and Linda Pearl Osborne.

Only the immediate relatives of the groom were present, the cold and stormy weather preventing the relatives of the bride from reaching Nanton.

After was served a sumptuous dinner the ceremony in Mrs. Osborne's best style.

The happy couple will spend a short honeymoon at the groom's home, after which they expect to reside in British Columbia—Nanton News.

A report just issued by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior shows that there is an area of 9,500 square miles of timber tributary to the district of Edmonton containing according to Government survey 3,727,000,000 feet of saw timber and over 10,- 000,000 cords of cord-wood. This must be interesting to people who think of Alberta as being entirely
a prairie province.

Some idea of the value of the big game resources of British Columbia is given by the fact that at a single small outfitting point this season,
big game hunters expended over $15,000 for supplies and wages.
The hunters generally appear to have been well satisfied with their trips and the results of their expenditure, and British Columbia
as a game-hunting country is steadily growing in popularity.

Bonnycastle Dale contributes the leading article to the February
issue of Rod and Gun in Canada,
published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., writing with his usual skill on observations
which he has made of wild animals in British Columbia:
"Roughing it de Luxe" by Judeon Gaylord is an account of a visit to a Quebec club for millionaires as set down by one who was successful in invading the 'millionaires'
stronghold. "Wilhelm the Hawk:
A Tragedy of the Prairies" by James E. Jones is the biography of a hawk whose dominant characteristics are analogous to those of a human Wilhelm now, more than in the public eye. "The Home Trail"
is the tale of a heart breaking trek to Oxford House and is related by R.
J. Fraser. P. V. Williams contributes a story, "The Ranger's Friend," and a cover design illustrating the story, which portrays a fight to the death between a moose and a pack of wolves. The regular departments are well maintained
and the number has a whole an attractive one particularly to sportsmen and lovers of out-door life in its various phases.

The fisheries of Northern Alberta employed last year 947 and the production amounted to over $86,- 000.00. The output for 1916 season promises considerable development. Alberta fish have a high reputation on the markets of the continent, the pure water and very favorable conditions in the Northern lakes producing an article of exceptional merit. Many buyers from United States markets now
visit Alberta to secure their fish supplies.
